

MLA CITATION EXAMPLES: Web Sources

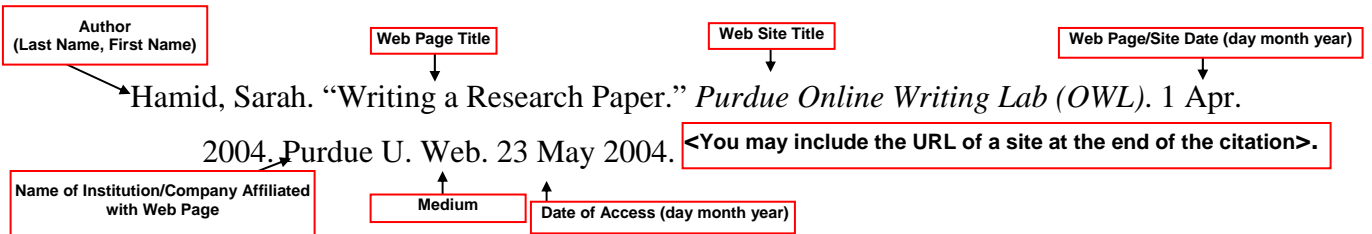

This guide is published as a supplement to the Santa Rosa Junior College MLA Style Sheet which can be found at: <http://www.santarosa.edu/petaluma/Lib./guides/howto/mla.pdf>

The World Wide Web provides access to many different source types such as web sites, web pages, books, email, blogs or online magazine/journal/newspaper articles.

WORLD WIDE WEB SOURCE – ENTIRE WEB SITE

WORLD WIDE WEB SOURCE – PAGE IN A LARGER WEB SITE

- Determine source type and follow the citation format as closely as possible for that version of the source.
- Include the complete URL (in angle brackets < >) at the very end of the citation, followed by a period, if the reader probably cannot locate the site without it OR YOUR INSTRUCTOR REQUIRES IT.
- MLA style capitalizes the E in E-mail, and separates E and mail with a hyphen.
